Biography

The German prodigy more than proved his worth, winning the German national title in June ahead of legions of more experienced pros. The 22-year-old revealed great things to come with consistent results all season long, with 11th overall at his debut race at the Tour of Qatar, 4th at the Giro del Mendrisiotto and 3rd overall on the final podium at the Tour of Britain. He capped a sensational rookie year with top-10s in both the Paris-Bourges and Paris-Tours fall classics. With more confidence, Reimer can look to build on the excellent foundation he laid in 2009 for continued success in 2010.
